Champs Invited To Inaugural

by Tom Ruggiero

The St. Michael's AFROTC drill team, New England champs for seven consecutive years, has been invited by Vermont Gov. Philip P. Hoff to march in the Inaugural Day parade as an official state representative.

The 25-man unit is led by Cadet Capt. Wayne R. Bordeau, drill team commander, and Cadet 2nd Lt. E. Keith Maloney, executive officer.

Keith Maloney was thrilled by the invitation and said, "It was an honor which the team greatly deserves, and I am sure that they will perform in a manner worthy of St. Michael's." Maloney added that special praise should be given to the sophomore members for the magnificent job they have done this year.

Freshman William Delaney said he was proud to be a part of such a fine unit. Louis Riley, also a freshman member, felt the invitation was an honor not only to the drill team but to the college as well.

Sophomore Eugene Belsole could not hide his pleasure over the upcoming trip saying, "Keith Maloney deserves a lot of credit for the fine job he has done in molding us into the fine unit we are."

This coming Spring the team is looking forward to strengthening its claim on another championship cup. Three wins are required in order to gain permanent possession of a cup and St. Mike's has two permanent cups and a win towards a third cup.

Others in the drill team who will march in the Inaugural Day parade are:

George F. Archambault, Jr., Jay Belbey, Eugene M. Belsole, Robert J. Boucher, Robert P. Changery, Harold E. Daigle, William P. Delaney, Daniel C. Durkin, Stephen S. Howard, Edward E. Johnson, John A. Lacaire, and Robert F. LaClair.

It seems that people can't be crated and shipped in a railroad car, no matter what the mission. And, Hilary Duncanson's attempt to do just that came to an end at the Railway Express Agency. His master plan included packaging at Winooski Park and transport to Green Mountain Junior College in Poultny, Vermont, where, in a manner akin to a party girl jumping out of a cake, he would bound out in Tyrolean hat and leather shorts proclaiming to Green Mountain's population the Junior Weekend theme "Mai Fest".

Duncanson's thwarted attempt is not consistent with what the 1965 Junior Weekend committee, headed by Ed Moitoza and Tom O'Connor is accomplishing, but he did get an offer of a job.

The committee, expecting a big response to the weekend, has decided to increase the number of tickets available to three hundred. Juniors will have preference in the purchase of the tickets. The committee has not officially announced the schedule, but has hinted of new additions to the traditional weekend.

New activities have been added to P-Day and the beard-growing which officially began last Tuesday.

The Christmas card drive was successful, and it shows a profit of $500. About 25 percent of the raffle returns have been made, totaling $1000. Raffle tickets will also be on sale in Alliot Hall.

Junior Weekend is on its way.

Underhill, Hootenanny For Winter Weekend

Winter Weekend '65 promises to be an exciting time for all who attend. Under the direction of co-chairmen Ron LeClerc and Frank Lytle, the committee has planned a complete 3-day social.

On Friday night, February 5, from 8:30 to 12 p.m., there will be a semi-formal in Alliot Hall. Saturday Michaelmen and their dates will go to Underhill for skiing, skating, and tobogganing, which will be offered free for those who can't ski.

For the indoor fans, there will be a rock 'n roll band at the lodge. Saturday evening St. Michael's faces Colby at Municipal Auditorium (dates will be admitted free) in an exciting game.

Sunday, February 7 will start with a 10 a.m. Mass, followed by a judging of the snow sculpture. Sunday afternoon will offer something new. Instead of ending the weekend the committee will offer a Hootenanny from 1-4 p.m. featuring several area groups.

This weekend is open to everyone and will be the most reasonable with tickets only $5.

The experience of co-chairmen Ron LeClerc and Frank Lytle has been fully utilized in preparing an event of superior quality at nominal cost.

The Winter Weekend '65 Committee asks that those who are submitting pictures for the Winter Weekend Queen contest by January 22. They should include two photographs (one formal, one informal), and the age, school or employer of the candidate.

Shield Staff On Schedule

The 1965 Shield is coming along smoothly according to Editor Leonard Carney and Associate Editor Tom Ryan.

Asserted Associate Editor Ryan when asked about the progress of the annual, "We are in the process of laying out the opening section of the book, to which we have taken special care in developing new styling, artistic, and layout techniques. Our senior section is also under way and promises to be one of the most outstanding sections of the book."

The SHIELD staff is working under the professional guidance of Stanley Sankowski, a 1956 alumnus of St. Michael's and representative of the American Yearbook Company which is printing the SHIELD.

Sankowski is quite enthused about the planning of the book and will lend a helping hand whenever possible.

At present, he is devising methods for the staff to use in meeting a special deadline on February 15th. If the staff can meet this deadline, by submitting a completed 16 page signature on that date, it will receive a bonus by being able to introduce as much color and art work as it desires at no additional cost. With this bonus in mind, and the long road ahead, Carney and Co. are moving fast and hard every step of the way.

Corny As Dorey In Kansas

by Gregory Koch

As all of you are (or at least should be) aware, the ROTC program at SMC has been drastically changed.

In order to attract the collegiate set into the Advanced Program the Air Force has offered a new inducement allowing the advanced cadets free travel on Air Force vehicles while they are in the Corps. So, in the true Michaelman spirit of adventure, Junior Ed Dorey decided to see if the Air Force would come across with the free travel they promised. On Monday, December 28, Ed obtained a set of travel orders from the ROTC department at school, which cleared him through to California. He began his trek west at Plattsburgh A.F.B. where, after a day's wait, he caught a KC-135 jet tanker to Schilling A.F.B., Kansas. There he was to make connections to San Francisco via an Air Force courier flight from Omaha.

Anyone who has ever had any experience traveling with the military can obviously see that things were going just too smoothly. The Air Force, in its inimitable style, soon remedied that problem. They cancelled Ed's flight, leaving our boy stranded since there was not another flight he could take until the following week.

December 31 arrived, Ed explained to me that, "If you have ever been to Kansas you realize that there is nothing more depressing than that state -- except possibly the state on New Year's Eve. It's dry, you see."

So having had enough of Schilling, Ed decided to pull a George Maharis. He walked out to Route 66, after abandoning the Air Force to its own devices, and started to hitch. One sore thumb and 40 hours later he was at his relative's house on the shores of the Pacific.

By Sunday, January 3, Ed was faced with the problem of the North American continent, or how do I make my 8:30 Theo class tomorrow morning.

"For a minute there, I was really tempted to say the hell with it. I mean there I was lying on this white sand beach overlooking the Pacific with nothing to go back to but a refrigerator and ten tests. But I suppose all of us have thought that way at one time or another and if anything else I've seen just enough of California to make me want to go back."

Our hero finally did make it back four days late for the resumption of class, however. The Air Force, with a little prodding from Ed's uncle who is a major stationed on the Coast, supplied the return transportation to Boston, and from there Ed made it back to Vermont.

Oh, and by the way, what kind of vacation did you have?

Because of its outstanding record in preparing students for careers in medicine, dentistry and research, a chapter of AED, the first in Vermont, was established at St. Michael's.

The new members are: Raymond J. Anton, Junior, and a Biology concentrator. He is a Dean's List student and a member of Phi Eta Sigma.

Alfred J. Baber, a junior who concentrates in Biology. Barber is also a Dean's List student.

Patrick J. DeLuca, a Junior Biology concentrator and a Dean's List student.

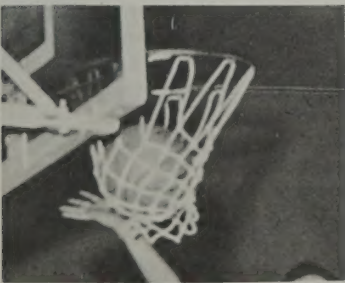

Paul L. Filippini concentrates in Biology at St. Michael's and is a member of the junior class. Filippini is a dean's list student.

Wilfrid L. Pilette, Biology concentrator, he is a Senior at St. Michael's. Pilette is also a Dean's List student.

CANNOT BE IGNORED

Normally after a month's duration, matters of controversy are forgotten. However, The MICHAELMAN feels that such a matter as the "Pep Rally" cannot be ignored.

The Pep Rally traditionally kicks off each basketball year with a flush of color and college spirit. Regretfully, this year's Pep Rally, while perhaps having difficulty topping those of previous years, was a real flop. It did not suffer from lack of organization, but from an excess of organization. It displayed no originality or real spontaneity but was a boring and artificial mockery. We on The MICHAELMAN are sure the Freshmen were disappointed.

Again we are to be thankful that a successful basketball season does not depend on a successful rally, although it can offer a real shot in the arm.

Remember this next year when the Pep Rally is scheduled and don't be tied down to a make-shift display of support. The team deserves more.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

Opportunity knocks only once according to the old saying, but on the Hilltop the Music and Humanities Departments seem to be banging down the door. And still some students fail to answer.

This year, along with a fine lecture series, a broad selection of musicians have been invited to campus. In many cases, as was the situation last Sunday, the program was proffered for entertainment and to encourage an aesthetic appreciation of music. Yet the attendance was less than satisfactory.

Those who don't care can be ignored. But those who feel they wouldn't appreciate it because they don't have a musical background could use a simple lesson in common sense.

Simply put - the more you know about something, the more you can appreciate it. We still have five months filled with cultural events. The opportunity may be passing you by.

A faction of the Modern Language Association is conducting an experiment in modern spelling on campus. The billboard in front of the chapel displays new spellings for old words, namely "class mates" for classmates and "sophmores" for sophomores.

If people understand the words in their new spellings, then the experiment will be considered successful. It has already been used successfully in factories and subway stations. The question now is, will people in places of higher learning grasp it?... On the other hand, there is some doubt as to whether the mercury in those thermometers will rise during the cold months ahead. As Benjamin Franklin once said, "Is that rising mercury or lowering mercury?"

The Observer

Formaldehyde And Milk

It's funny how you always seem to mark the beginning of a year -- when you were old enough and it was lets say for example 1962 or 1963 or 1964 -- by recalling what happened on that particular New Year's Eve. I mean, not that you had thoughts about it the next day over an alkaseltzer or anything -- that's impossible -- but when you remember it two or three years afterwards maybe. Anyway, the surprising thing is that it all comes back so clearly; at least for me its always been that way. Heck, I have all kinds of New Year's memories.

Once, going pretty far back, I did a friend of mine a favor: consented to go out with a girl who was a friend of his girl, you know? We were good buddies, this guy and I, and the word was that this girl was really sharp, I'd like her. Well I sure did; I was just c-r-a-z-y about her. To this day, whenever Pete and I meet, I cannot stop thanking him.

So, anyway, we picked the girls up. We waited around the living room of course and smoked a lot of cigarettes and everything before they came down. I met my date and, all of a sudden, I knew. There was no doubt about it, I knew then.

We leisurely drove out to wherever it was we were going, chattering gaily, excitedly wringing the very juice out of the charged atmosphere of the care. Pete and his girl spoke that secret, silent language that couples do, discussing how happy they knew we were in the back seat. I smiled tenderly from time to time and spoke of my future, stifling the urge to hurl myself out onto the pavement to my death.

But it was good. There was the party with hats and horns and lots going on. Then it got to be midnight, with her miraculously finding and dragging me out from behind the drapes by the picture window. After that it was over and we were leaving and it was even better. Before long we were pulling up to my date's place up at Mayo and in the night air you could smell the Formaldehyde by Arpege that she was wearing and then we were back on the highway and it was truly great.

But there are other memories too: of the next year, with a young lady of my own choosing this time, a college Queen of some kind, who, when we went out neglected to tell me, until it was too late, of her stomach problems and affinity for progressively more acute uncoordination; and of the following year, with a honey who really came on like gangbusters, and of the tremendous time that was until a row of parked cars just loomed up out of nowhere and halted our progress.

But I've gone off on a tangent; rambled.

What it is I'm trying to get at though, what I've been leading up to all this time, is this past New Year's. It was spent with a grandmother I have who is 93. In the family, we call her "grandmother". She's a real fun-type gal, though gnarled and white-haired, and vivacious to the point where she firmly believes she is only sixteen. A fight fan's fight fan, she plays the guitar, likes to listen to Buddy Holly, and has this funny little penchant for cackling and punching people in the arm. We spent a quiet, uneventful New Year's together, my first in four years, watching Guy Lombardo on television. Popping Christmas candies into our mouths and drinking scotch and warm milk, I sat in a chair up close to the set, suffocating under four blankets while grandmother sat propped up in her bed. Busily knitting a shroud, grandmother put the finishing touches to the evening, admitting having a secret crush on actor Paul Kelly whom she used to babysit for over in Brooklyn many years ago, shaking her finger and saying things like: "When I say I'm in love, you best believe I'm in love: l.u.v!"

But, as I say, mine was a very quiet New Year's for a change. And, if its any indication of what the coming annum has in store for us up here on the campus, I think it points out the probability of a pretty static, uneventful second semester. Yet that means making perdictions; and, although it is the time of the year for them, I don't feel qualified. So what I'll do is just go over a few of the inevitables.

Academically, its safe to assume that we'll see at least a little emphasis placed on the Black Death; politically speaking, that Father Anderson will unhesitatingly back Dean Burch; in alumni affairs, that John Trotter will definitely be invited back again to address the Student Forum; administratively, that the secretaries will continue to run the college; spiritually, that the catchy Junior slogan of "there is no Sheed" will spread like wildfire and probably never perish; and, in the opinion dept., that there will be the letter sent off by a Senior, who, after four years of searching, will confidently write: "Yes, Mom, there is a Father Dupont."

But, that about does it for the oracle. I must admit the forecast doesn't look too exciting, nevertheless its amazing how in a matter of minutes the strangest things can happen. I guess I'll just sit back and wait.

STUDENT FORUM

by John F. Ryan

The Student Forum met Tuesday for the first time since before Christmas. and the result was a 20-minute meeting.

Richie Tarrant, Chairman of Interclass Activities Committee, reported that the Seniors and Sophs were tied in basketball and also that the Sophomores finished first in the blood drive. Total point standings as of Tuesday were Sophomores - 75, Seniors - 67.5, Juniors - 45, and Frosh - 2.5. Interclass skiing will be held at Jeffersonville, February 6.

John Higgins, Chapel Drive Chairman, reported the Freshman have turned in $316, the Seniors $196, Sophomores $192, and Juniors $24.

Under old business, Frank Lytle explained that the school blazers, supposed to have been delivered prior to Christmas vacation, have been lost in the mails but that everyone's will be delivered.

Persistent Bob Weigand requested the Student Welfare Committee report specifically on homogenized milk and the meal situation in the cafeteria, paper towels in the dorms, subjects which had been referred to that committee before Christmas vacation.

New Business was passed with a minimum of discussion. First, Andrew Bisson was given permission to sell the New York Herald Tribune on campus. On the motion of Mr. Weigand, Alliot Hall was reserved for a Freshman Class dance, Feb. 20. Gil Regan asked that the possibility of having the national anthem played before our home basketball games be investigated. Joe Barnes obtained permission for the Sophomores to run a Honda raffle immediately following the present Junior Class raffle. Although traditionally there is only one raffle per year on campus this motion was passed with a minimum of discussion.

In the manner of an announcement, Rusty Grace, Student Forum President, reported that the curriculum committee is becoming a reality, after being discussed by the Faculty-Student Advisory Committee. Anyone having any ideas on what the scope of this committee should see Frank Lytle, Joyce 202.

After service, he studied at Georgetown University and received his master's degree from the Boston College School of Social Work.

He is the regional director for the Greater Woonsocket and the Pawtucket-Blackstone Valley areas of the United Fund.

Agostinelli, a captain in the Air Force Reserve, is married and has one daughter, Maria Anthony, born Dec. 16.

Placement To Hit Peak During Next Month

by John J. Kenney

The Placement Department is entering its peak period of activity this month. Mr. Richard McDowell presented to the students an impressive list of job interviews and statistics concerning graduates of liberal arts colleges.

Mr. McDowell announced that the first part of the annual Placement Council Salary Report foretells a 33 percent salary rise for non-technical college graduates. This increase has more than doubled during the last two years.

Business students are given a boost in morale by the recent survey of Harvard Business Review subscribers. The tally shows a combination of Business and Liberal Arts courses is in the lead as preparation for a good executive position.

VISTA, Volunteers in Service to America, a part of President Johnson's Poverty Program, is under way. It is a parallel program to the Peace Corps, but it is to be used solely within the boundaries of the United States and its territories and trusts. Any citizen over 18 may apply. The training period is from 4 to 6 weeks, and the period of employment is one year. Further information and applications may be obtained at the Placement Office (F 115).

Mr. McDowell stated that his contact with the Seniors has been more than satisfactory up to date. But he expressed disappointment that, as yet, 46 Seniors have failed to register with his office in Founders. He has an optimistic outlook on this year's Placement results.

The Placement Office will be open for consultation Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. to 12 noon through March 27. Any Senior who has not yet registered is urged to do so as soon as possible.

He retired in 1950 but continued to live and compose in Prevel Hall for several years afterward.

SMC Donations Satisfactory For Chapel

by Robert Weigand

The donations from SMC students for the chapel drive are coming in satisfactorily, as evidenced by figures on the new chart in front of the chapel.

The Juniors are behind the others in collection receipts, but this is understandable because of the Junior Weekend rush.

The chart reports the individual class standings, since the project is an interclass point project.

sician, Teacher). Tributes from Leonard Bernstein, director of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, and from Randall Thompson, the noted composer, appear in English as does a brief description of a course given at St. Michael's. Thompson was director of the Curtis Institute of Music and Bernstein a pupil when Dr. Stoehr taught at Curtis.

Dr. Stoehr's pupils are estimated to have numbered 10,000. The book lists those he had in his 40 years of teaching at Vienna and at the Curtis Institute.

Tributes from critics all over the world are found in the book plus a facsimile of one of Dr. Stoehr's most famous songs, "Weisst du, Wo?" First sung in Vienna, it appeared in a program so printed that it was given as a song by Brahms.

A critic who had been hostile to Dr. Stoehr went into rhapsodies about this particular song, lamenting that more singers did not offer this Brahms' masterpiece. Dr. Stoehr kept the secret to himself and to his diary which provided much of the material for the biography.

Six pages are required to list his works. Pages of several noteworthy ones are reproduced. The book also reproduces the program sponsored by St. Michael's as part of its Golden Jubilee. Featured were the Vermont State Symphony Orchestra, led by Dr. Allen Carter, and William Hain, tenor. The premiere of Dr. Stoehr's "Vermont Suite" was made possible by the Free Press Foundation.

When the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra visited Burlington on its first American tour, it included many musicians who had studied with Dr. Stoehr. Their autographs are shown on the flyleaf of the program.

Some of Dr. Stoehr's other noted pupils include: conductors, Leonard Bernstein, Erich Leinsdorf, Walter Hendl, Arthur Rodzinski; pianists, Alexander Brailowsky, Eugene Istomin, Rudolph Serkin; plus Marlene Dietrich and Vicki Baum.

Of special Vermont interest is a sketch of Dr. Stoehr by Ruth Bauer Flynn, Essex Junction, a postlude contributed by Dr. Wilhelm Raab of Burlington and acknowledgments for the help of Miss Julia Workman, Mrs. Barbara (Beal) Green, Neil J. Fitzpatrick and John D. Donoghue, former students or associates. He wrote and dedicated several songs for Mr. Donoghue and is the author of a "St. Michael's Suite" and an alma mater.

Dr. Stoehr now lives in a rest home in Montpelier. Mrs. Stoehr and their daughter, Mrs. Charles (Hedi) Ballantyne, also make their home in Montpelier. The Stoehr's son, Richard, lives in Jerusalem.

The book, published in Vienna by Verlag Doblinger, will be available from the Associated Music Publishers, Inc., 1 West 47th Street, New York City. Mrs. Stoehr received an advance copy.

Virtuoso Quintet Heard Before Sparse Audience

by George Paulin

Sunday evening, January 10, marked the appearance of the Virtuosi Woodwind quintet with Carol and Jay Light, playing flute and oboe, John Van Bochern, clarinet, Gaeton Leberge, bassoon, and Thomas Kenny, horn.

To a rather sparse Playhouse audience the program started with a demonstration of the instruments used.

The first piece was the Diver-timento No. 1 in B flat in three movements by Haydn. Although there seemed to be a lack of any real expression by the quintet, the flautist and hornist showed admirable interest in the piece.

Beethoven's Quintet in E flat Major was outstandingly performed although it seemed to lack the full passion of the adagio movements. The clarinetist throughout performed with great sensitivity and accuracy.

The second half began with the Scherzo for woodwind by Bozza, with a wonderful little fugue introduction developing into a mere series of inconsequential runs, baffling, but at the same time fascinating.

The highlight of the evening was in the "Kleine Kammer Musik" in five movements by Hindemith, an absolutely wild piece which inspired the group's most excellent performance of the evening. The piccolo added variety to the second movement, while the third movement produced a leary feeling. The fourth movement demanded a great virtuosity in which Mr. Van Bockburn excelled.

The Three Sea Chanties, brisk in nature and built upon quaint effects were well executed also. The pieces were amusing and well received by the audience even though the application of such familiar melodies often upsets discerners of good music.

An encore, the Presto by Haydn, was indeed more interesting than the programed piece by Haydn.

Stephen Reynes, sophomore from Stamford, Vt., has recently been appointed to the National Grange Youth Committee for 1965.

Steve joined the Grange five years ago in Stamford, Vermont. Three years ago he was elected as the youngest master (president) of his grange in the state.

After his term of office, he competed in the Grange sponsored Vermont State Talent Contest and placed second. Last summer, he entered the New England Lecturers Contest, which tested his ability to provide programs for Grange meetings. He acted as master of ceremonies and also was M.C. at the New England Degree Contest, which determines which Grange is best in performing ceremonial functions.

With this experience Steve was sent to the National Grange Conference, in Atlantic City, N.J. There he was appointed Youth Chaplain for the convention. He didn't know at this time that the New England Representative's office on the National Youth Committee was vacant, and that he was being considered for the post.

Steve Reynes

As a member of the Youth Committee, Steve will travel this summer and speak to various chapters. He intends to continue in the Grange and eventually teach in rural Vermont.

The Grange is a rural organization, which provides social life and performs civic functions for country areas. It is among the three organizations which survive from 413 national farm organizations founded since the Civil War. The Grange still provides much help for the farmer, but today many of its members are non-farmers.

Now It's Boiler Room Blues

Editor's Note: The piece below is reprinted from the back of a folk album featuring an anthology of freedom ballads called "Don't Think Twice," performed by several of the author's former friends.

by Kirk R. Weixel

Ya don't see or hear 'em down there anymore. It's dark down there now and kinda lonely and there ain't any real point in going down unless you just wanna keep warm. But once they went down there, down in the Joyce Hall Boiler Room. Ya could hear 'em like after dinner or maybe on a lonely Saturday night or somethin'.

They'd usually go down one at a time and it was kinda spontaneous like. Maybe Beas'd drop down first and the others 'd hear 'im singin' or somethin', but they'd come down sure 'nuf.

Beas 'd take a long time turnin' up and then he'd just tilt his head back and let go. You never heard nothin' like it. Then one of the others would start tunin' up too and then join in.

Bill would usually come down second and then Moose and when they all got goin' you couldn't think or speak or nothin'. It wouldn't a done you much good to speak anyway, 'cause they'd be singin' so loud nobody could hear ya.

What a sound, I'm tellin' ya. They'd really get goin' and they'd be goin' so good you'd think a body couldn't hardly stand it and then you'd lean back and put your hand right on the boiler and the first thing you knew half the skin was burnt off your hand and ya wanted to scream so bad, but ya didn't 'cause they were goin' so good so ya bit your lip and maybe prayed a little that the skin would grow back someday.

If it was a great night, if it was really a great night, Jimmy would stop down. He'd always come in last with his finger picks on and his harmonica holder around his neck that he made from old coat hangers. It was a beautiful holder and he was thinkin' about makin' lots of them and sellin' 'em but he figured that was commercializin' things and wanted 'em kept pure. But soon he'd get out the old harmonica and really let loose. Boy could he blow, Wah, wah, wah. It really got ya.

The Beas decided to do things up big and bought a five hundred dollar twelve-string which really sounded great and then Bill showed him up with his thirty-five dollar twelve-string and then when they'd really get goin' it 'd almost drive ya nuts.

But it was bound to happen. Bill started flunkin' all kinds of exams and Beas was afraid to take his good twelve-string down into a dirty old boiler room and Jimmy ran out a coat hangers and Moose didn't play any kind a instrument and figured guys might begin to wonder about him if he just went down there with his crazy hat and sang to himself.

So like I say you can't imagine how lonely it is down there now with it being so quiet with everybody gone and all. And there really ain't no point in going down at all now unless ya just wanna keep warm.

On January 21, the monthly meeting of the Intercollegiate Council will be held at the University of Vermont's Billings Center.

At this month's meeting the problem of the numerous Michaelmen using UVM's library facilities will be discussed and the possibilities of a cooperative program looked into.

The I.C.C. is also the sponsor of the "Student of the Week" published in the Burlington Free Press. Each week, based on a rotational system of the member colleges, one outstanding student is chosen for the honor.

A Music Workshop will be one of the features of St. Michael's College Summer Session.

The Workshop, designed for public and parochial classroom teachers, will be offered June 28-July 9. It will carry two credits. The emphasis will be upon the elementary curriculum in music.

Dr. Robert J. Giroux, director of the Summer Session, said that Dr. William Tortolano, director of music at St. Michael's, will direct the Workshop.

Two graduate courses in Education will be offered by St. Michael's College during the second semester.

Dr. Robert J. Giroux, director of graduate education, will teach a Saturday morning class in Tests and Measurements starting February 6 at 9:30.

He will also conduct a Coordinating Seminar on Monday evenings at 7:30, starting February 1.

The courses are primarily arranged for public and parochial school teachers. Others may register on the opening nights or in advance with Dr. Giroux.

The Frosh Five won the battle for the cellar in intramural basketball by losing a close contest to the third place Juniors, 53-40.

The Juniors, led by Keefe and Supinski, took an early lead in the first quarter. Krupa and Seymour sunk a few big ones for the Frosh but the Juniors still kept the lead. At the start of the second quarter the Juniors were ahead 17 to 10.

On The Road

LIP TIPS SMC

St. Michael's lost its second heartbreaker in a row to the Blackbirds of Long Island University 90-86 in overtime in a game played in the old Brooklyn Paramount Theatre in New York City. The Markeymen had to come from behind in order to tie the game 80-80 at the end of regulation time. In suffering their third loss of the season, the Knights showed great desire in forcing the game into overtime, since the Blackbirds had held the lead from the opening tap-off up until almost the final buzzer. Richie Tarrant, Eddie Kryger, and Billy Cummins all put on fine performances for the Knights, while Albie Grant led all scorers with 30 points in leading L.I.U. to victory. Tarrant had 25, E. Kryger 23, and Cummins

18 for SMC. KNIGHTS BEAT BUFFALO

St. Michael's ran its season record to 6-1 with a 93-86 win over Buffalo in the opening round of the LeMoyne Invitational Basketball Tournament in New York. The Knights held a halftime lead of 41-30 by virtue of a balanced scoring attack against the Queen City team. Richie Tarrant led all scorers with 28 points, while Eddie Kryger popped in 26 for the Purple Knights. The win put the Knights into the Championship Game against LeMoyne, who defeated Oswego in the other opening round game.

LEMOYNE EDGES ST. MICHAEL'S

LeMoyne edged St. Michael's in the Championship Game of the LeMoyne Tournament 68-66.

LeMoyne held a halftime lead of 32-30, as neither team could open up a substantial lead. The story was the same in the second half, with LeMoyne coming out on top for the second year in a row while playing the Knights on its home court in upstate New York. Richie Tarrant and Eddie Kryger led the Knights with 19 and 14 points respectively. DeYulia paced LeMoyne with 22. The Knights play LeMoyne again on January 23 in Burlington.

SMC STOMPS ADELPHI

St. Michael's drove to a convincing 97-77 win over Adelphi in the last game of a six game road trip for the Knights. In avenging last year's 68-63 defeat by the Panthers, who eventually went on to Evansville, the Purple Knights ended the trip on a very successful note and looked forward with optimism to the rest of the schedule. SMC had six men in double figures in scoring for the contest, as Billy Cummins played his second outstanding game in a row with 19 points and 12 assists. Bobby Kryger rang up 22 for the Knights, while Eddie Kryger popped in 15 and handed out an amazing total of 17 assists. Richie Tarrant and Brian Quinn had 18 and 10 points respectively, and Bruce Stryhas 13 for SMC, while Steve Mallis led the Panthers with 23 in a losing effort.

From The Stands

Things to look forward to in the New Year:

- The Sophs will taunt the Juniors by bringing the propeller to the basketball games.
- The varsity basketball squad gaining entrance to the New England Regional Playoffs.
- Two very closely contested wins over UVM in basketball, SMC winning one and losing one to UVM in baseball.
- The ski team winning a berth to enter class "A" competition.
- The Seniors winning the interclass basketball tournament.
- Richie Tarrant to average 30 points a game this year and becoming a draft pick of the Boston Celtics.
- The Juniors glad to see the propeller brought to games and will recapture it.
- The Minnesota Vikings will face the St. Louis Cardinals in this year's NFL Championship game.
- Buffalo and San Diego will again fight it out in the AFL with San Diego winning.
- The New York Yankees will pull out the American League Championship with a 10 game winning streak in September. The National League will be a toss up (too close to pick).
- The New York Giants will climb back into the first division, maybe as high as 2nd place.
- The SMC golf squad will capture the state crown and have another ultra-successful season.

JUNIOR WEEKEND BLAST

P-Day will be quite a show with the tug of war as chief attraction. As a matter of fact Junior Weekend should be an interesting show in itself.

Richie Tarrant will garner All-East weekly honors at least three times. (He already has a single time to his credit.) Ed Kryger will win this honor once and Bill Cummins deserves some recognition.

I wonder which great athlete will be the first to go swimming in the lake in the coming season. (Class points should be given for that --- Juniors won it last year.)

The Sophs and Juniors will split honors in inter-class bowling competition.

The most original hat award will be conferred at the end of the season.

Recent articles in national papers have called the Philadelphia Palestra the worst place to play college basketball in the country (sounds interesting -- wonder if they've ever played at the auditorium).

WSSE IN DEMAND

More games will be broadcasted on WSSE, say Assumption on Jan. 31.

Tom and Jerry did fine except for those ten second commercial bits.

Golden Gloves coming up soon. One of the best sports events in the Burlington area.

At least two erstwhile weekend SMC skiers will wind up on crutches.

Interclass hockey could be the tightest race of the year with three teams in the running.

The Montreal Canadiens will win the hockey play-offs.

With Bill Russell around, the Celtics will keep rolling along.

The baseball season will depend on arms of Soph hurlers.

Forecast - over .500 this year.

The Mets will climb to 8th place and outdraw the Yankees by a half million fans.

I would be happy if half the forecasts come through, but on behalf of the sports staff of The MICHAELMAN, we wish a great new year to everyone.

SMC Scores International Win

by 'Ron Tenaglia

Monday evening the Purple Knights temporarily entered the ranks of international sport when they played host to the Icelandic National Basketball Team. The contest was held in conjunction with the People-to-People Sports Association, the object of which is to bring about international friendship through sports.

The Knights outscored the Northlanders 81-61 in the final outcome. Lacking the depth of most college teams the Northlanders made up for that by sporting a sharp fast break, along with a stiff 2-1-2 zone defense.

Coch Markay substituted freely throughout the game to keep the contest interesting. Ed Kryger did not see any action, enjoying a well deserved rest.

DEFENSIVE TEAM

At halftime a 37-30 score attested to the fact that the Knights met considerable resistance with their strong defense.

AMAZING JUMPERS

Exhibiting an amazing jumping ability the Northmen thrilled the crowd at the Auditorium with some fine play under the boards. Considering the fact that Iceland only formed a Basketball Association in 1961, the National team made a fine showing against one of the top small college powers in New England.

by Jerry Wisneski

St. Michael's upped its record to 9-3 Wednesday night by out-fighting the Norwich Cadets 107-88. In breaking the hundred mark for the sixth time this season, the Purple Knights got a 31 point performance from Richie Tarrant.

An indication of the wild nature of the game was that the Knights had a 1 and 1 foul situation with 14 minutes to go in the first half. Cadet forward Bob Byrnes picked up his third personal foul as the 15:08 mark of the first half. Four technicals were called (three on Norwich).

The contest started slowly with both teams playing sloppy ball. At the 10:05 mark Rome Aja was called for a technical foul and the Saints proceeded to rattle off 12 consecutive points. St. Michael's dashed for the exit at halftime nursing a 49-42 lead.

Second half action found the Purple Gang doing a better job on both boards. Tarrant hit two quick jumpers making the score (64-50). Backed by their version of "Arnie's army," Norwich closed the gap to 84-77. This was as close as they were to get as some time shooting by Tarrant and spirited board work by Bruce Stryhas and Bob Kryger put the game out of reach. The Knights (9-3) are unbeaten in state play and face Middlebury here Friday (22).

Yule Games Bring Wins And...

KNIGHTS LOSE FIRST TO HOLY CROSS

St. Michael's lost its first game of the season to a strong Holy Cross squad by the score of 99-75 at Worcester Auditorium in Worcester, Massachusetts.

The Knights had won 10 straight games over a two year period, and put up a courageous fight to keep the streak going as a full house of 2,800 fans looked on, including many St. Michael's rooters.

Richie Tarrant put on a fantastic scoring performance for the Knights as he poured in 45 points, 30 in the first half, to easily take scoring honors for both teams for the game. Tarrant came within a point of tying the all-time record for a Holy Cross opponent, and his 18 baskets tied a record shared by two others, although he did not see action the last two minutes.

On the other hand, the Crusaders, led by backcourt co-captains Lloyd Hinchey and John Wendelken, put on a strong finish to win the game after the score had been tied 62-all with 12 and a half minutes remaining. It was 65-64 Cross with 11:50 to go, but the Crusaders reeled off 11 straight points to put the game out of reach for the never-say-die Knights. Hinchey scored 25 points to pace the Cross attack, while Ed Kryger flipped in 13 for St. Michael's.

ST. MICHAEL'S BEATS NEW YORK TECHNICAL

St. Michael's got back on the winning trail against New York Technical by beating the home club 96-85. Richie Tarrant, did not see action in the game because of an injury. Jim Dooley started in his place. Bobby and Eddie Kryger led the Knights' scoring with 30 and 28 points respectively, while McLean paced Tech with 35.

'66 Holds Duckpin Lead

by Jerry Wisneski

The Juniors jumped back into 1st place in duckpin bowling action Tuesday night by defeating the Seniors 5-3.

Carl (Zippy) Zehnder paced the Juniors B team to a clean sweep with a fine 360 triple, including a 150 single. Teammate John Whelan came into his own, coming up with a big 122 single. Bob Colclough's 308 was the best the Senior B squad could muster.

The Jim O'Brien led Senior A squad had little trouble defeating the slumping Junior A trio, with high Scoring Lou DeNunzio experiencing one of his rare off nights for the Juniors. The Class of '68 again failed to make the scene and suffered yet another forfeit.

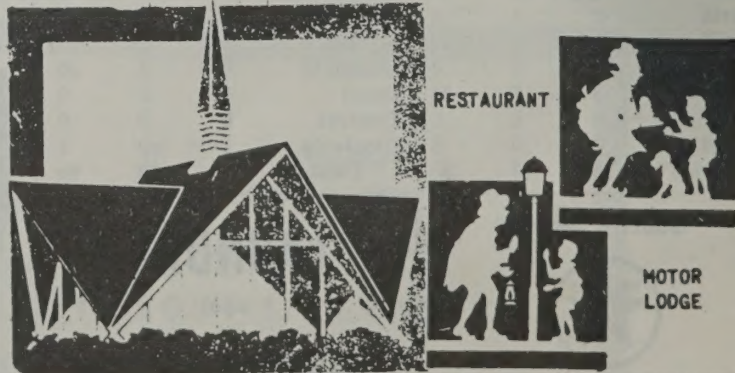

Current league standings find the Juniors on top with 38 points closely followed by the Seniors with 36 points and the fast rising Sophomores with 33 points. This season's race is one of the closest in years with any team capable of bumping the other off. Next week's slate finds the Juniors meeting the Frosh and the Sophs challenging the Seniors in the big match of the evening.
